THE TEMPLE DOORS AND FOYER

THE VESTIBULES

The image depicts a luxurious, theatrical interior. In the center, a curved bar with a glass front is illuminated from within, displaying various glassware and bottles. Behind the bar, a person in a red jacket is visible. The bar is flanked by two large, ornate wooden pillars with intricate carvings. On the left pillar, several decorative masks are displayed. To the left of the bar, a plush red velvet armchair with a matching ottoman sits on a polished floor. To the right, another similar red velvet armchair and ottoman are positioned. The background features a large, ornate chandelier and a wall with a clock face. The overall atmosphere is warm and sophisticated, with rich reds and gold accents.

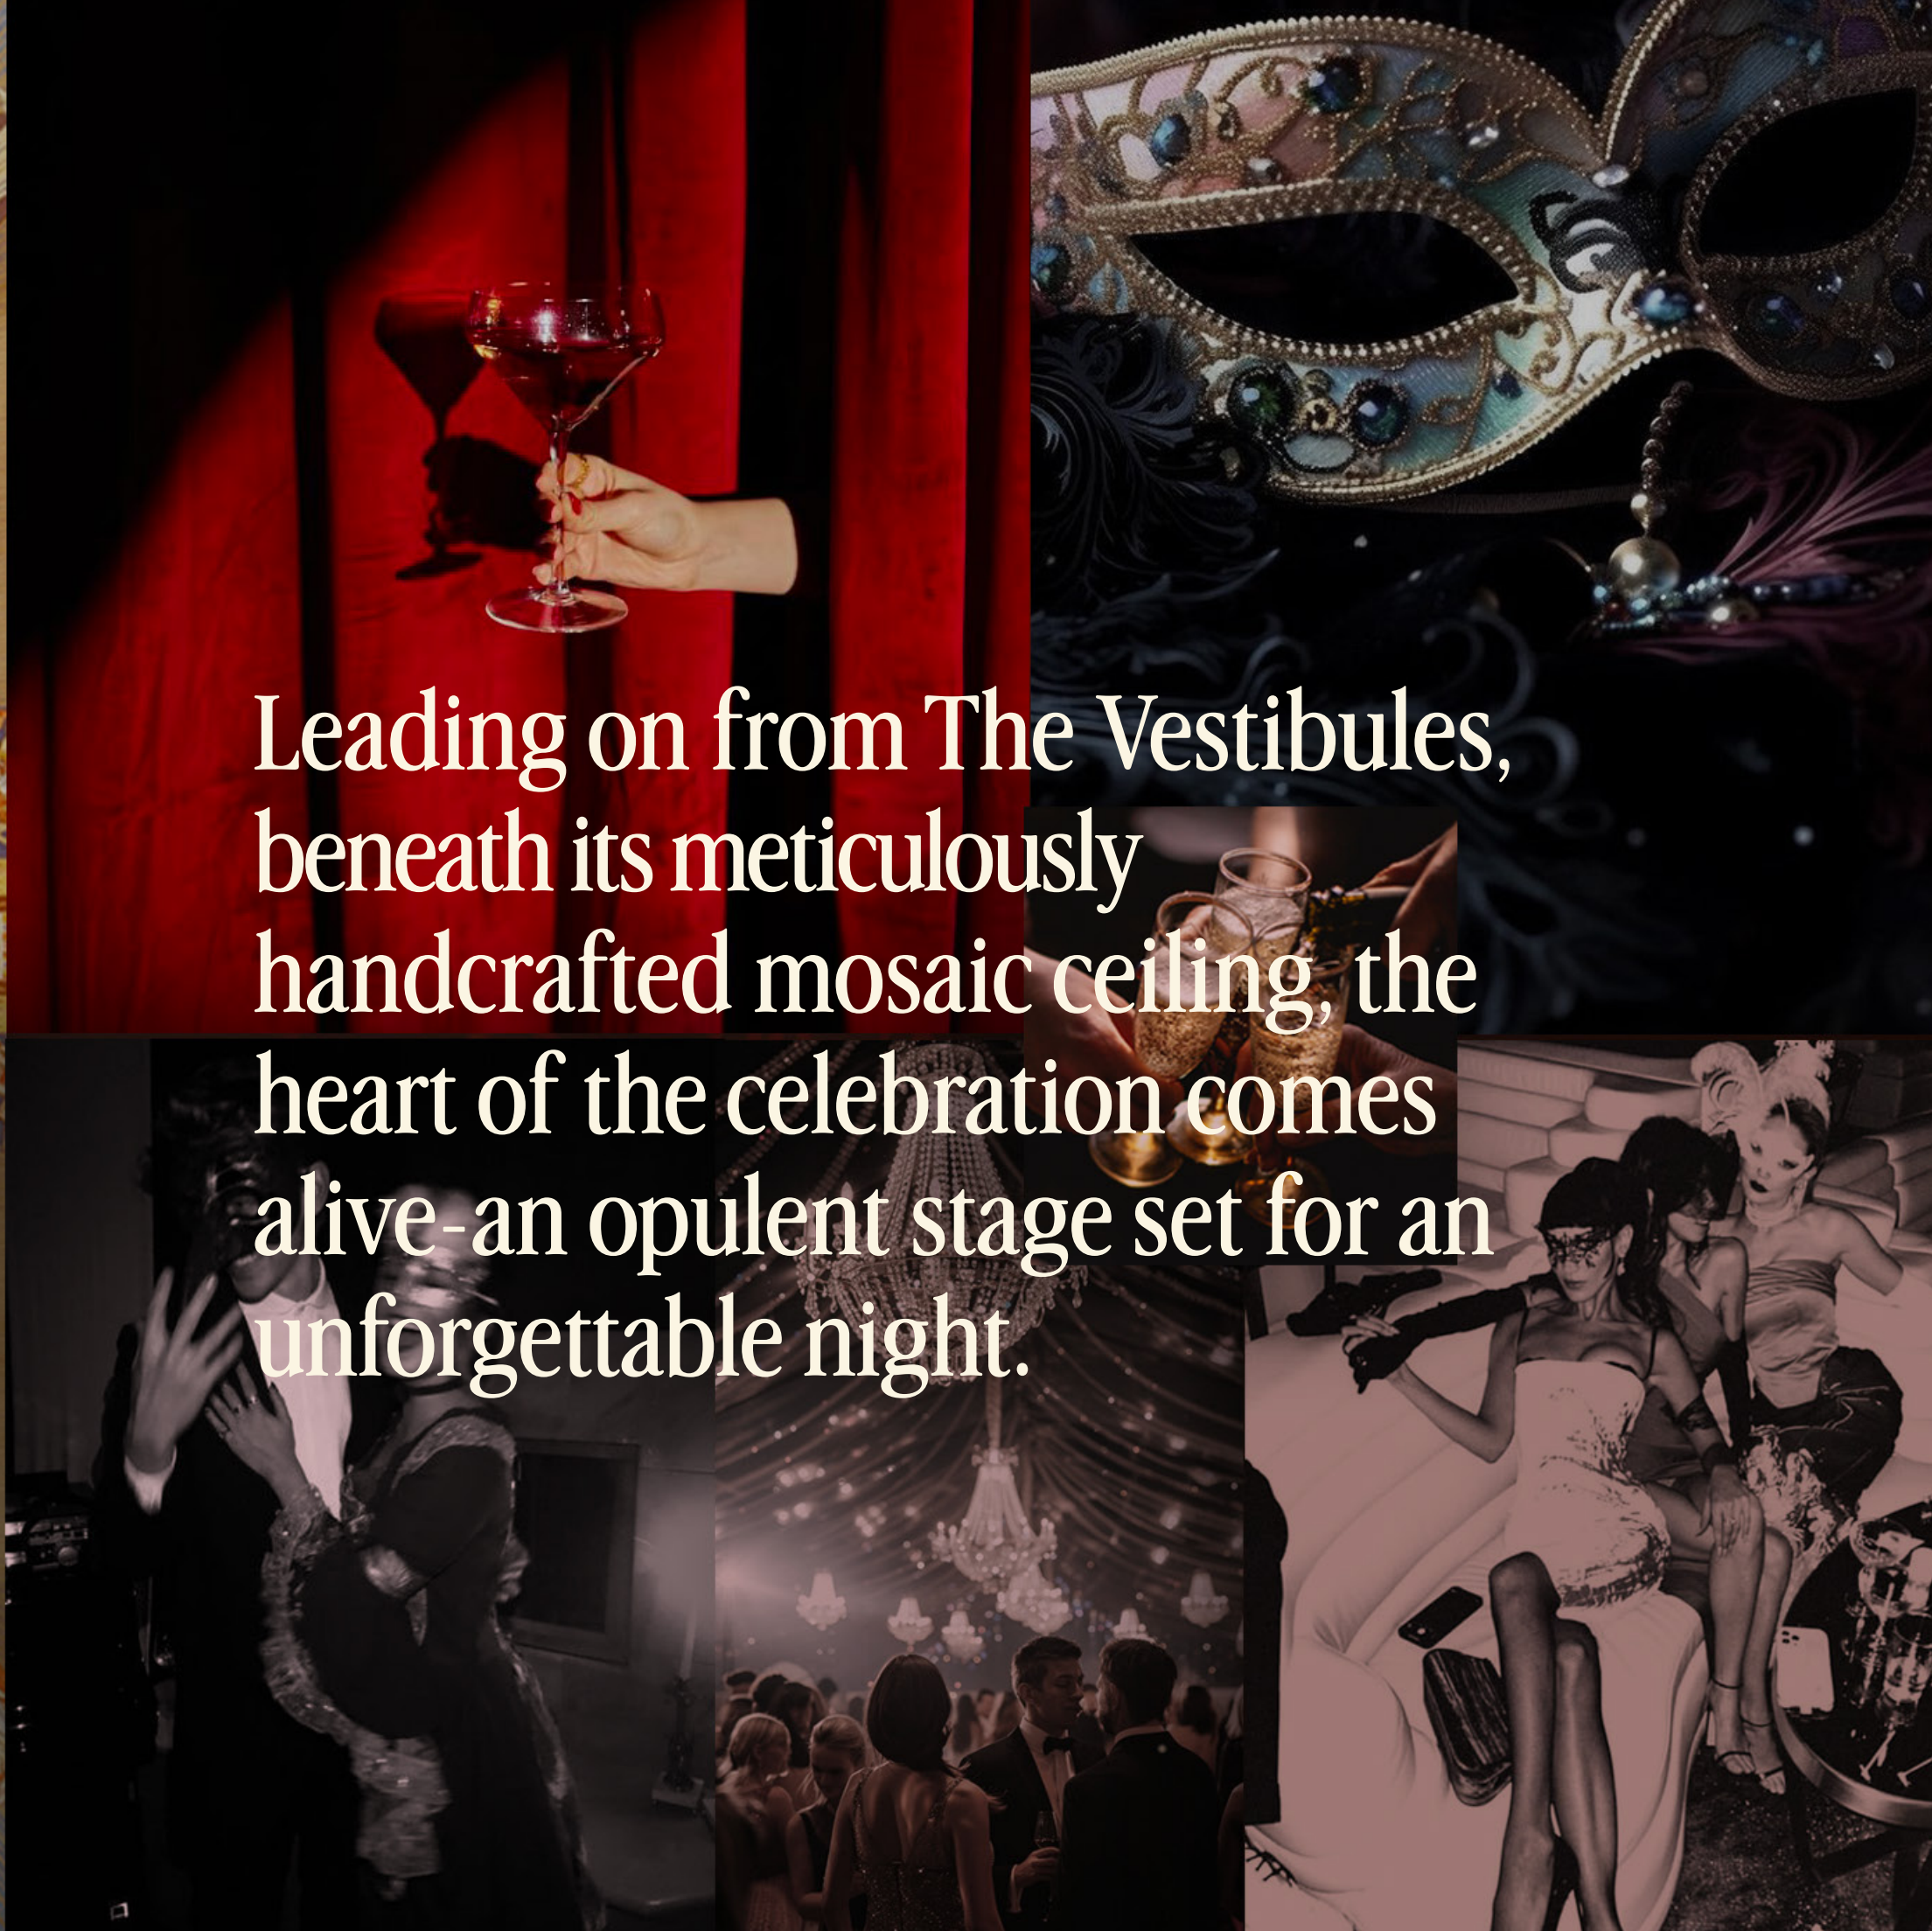

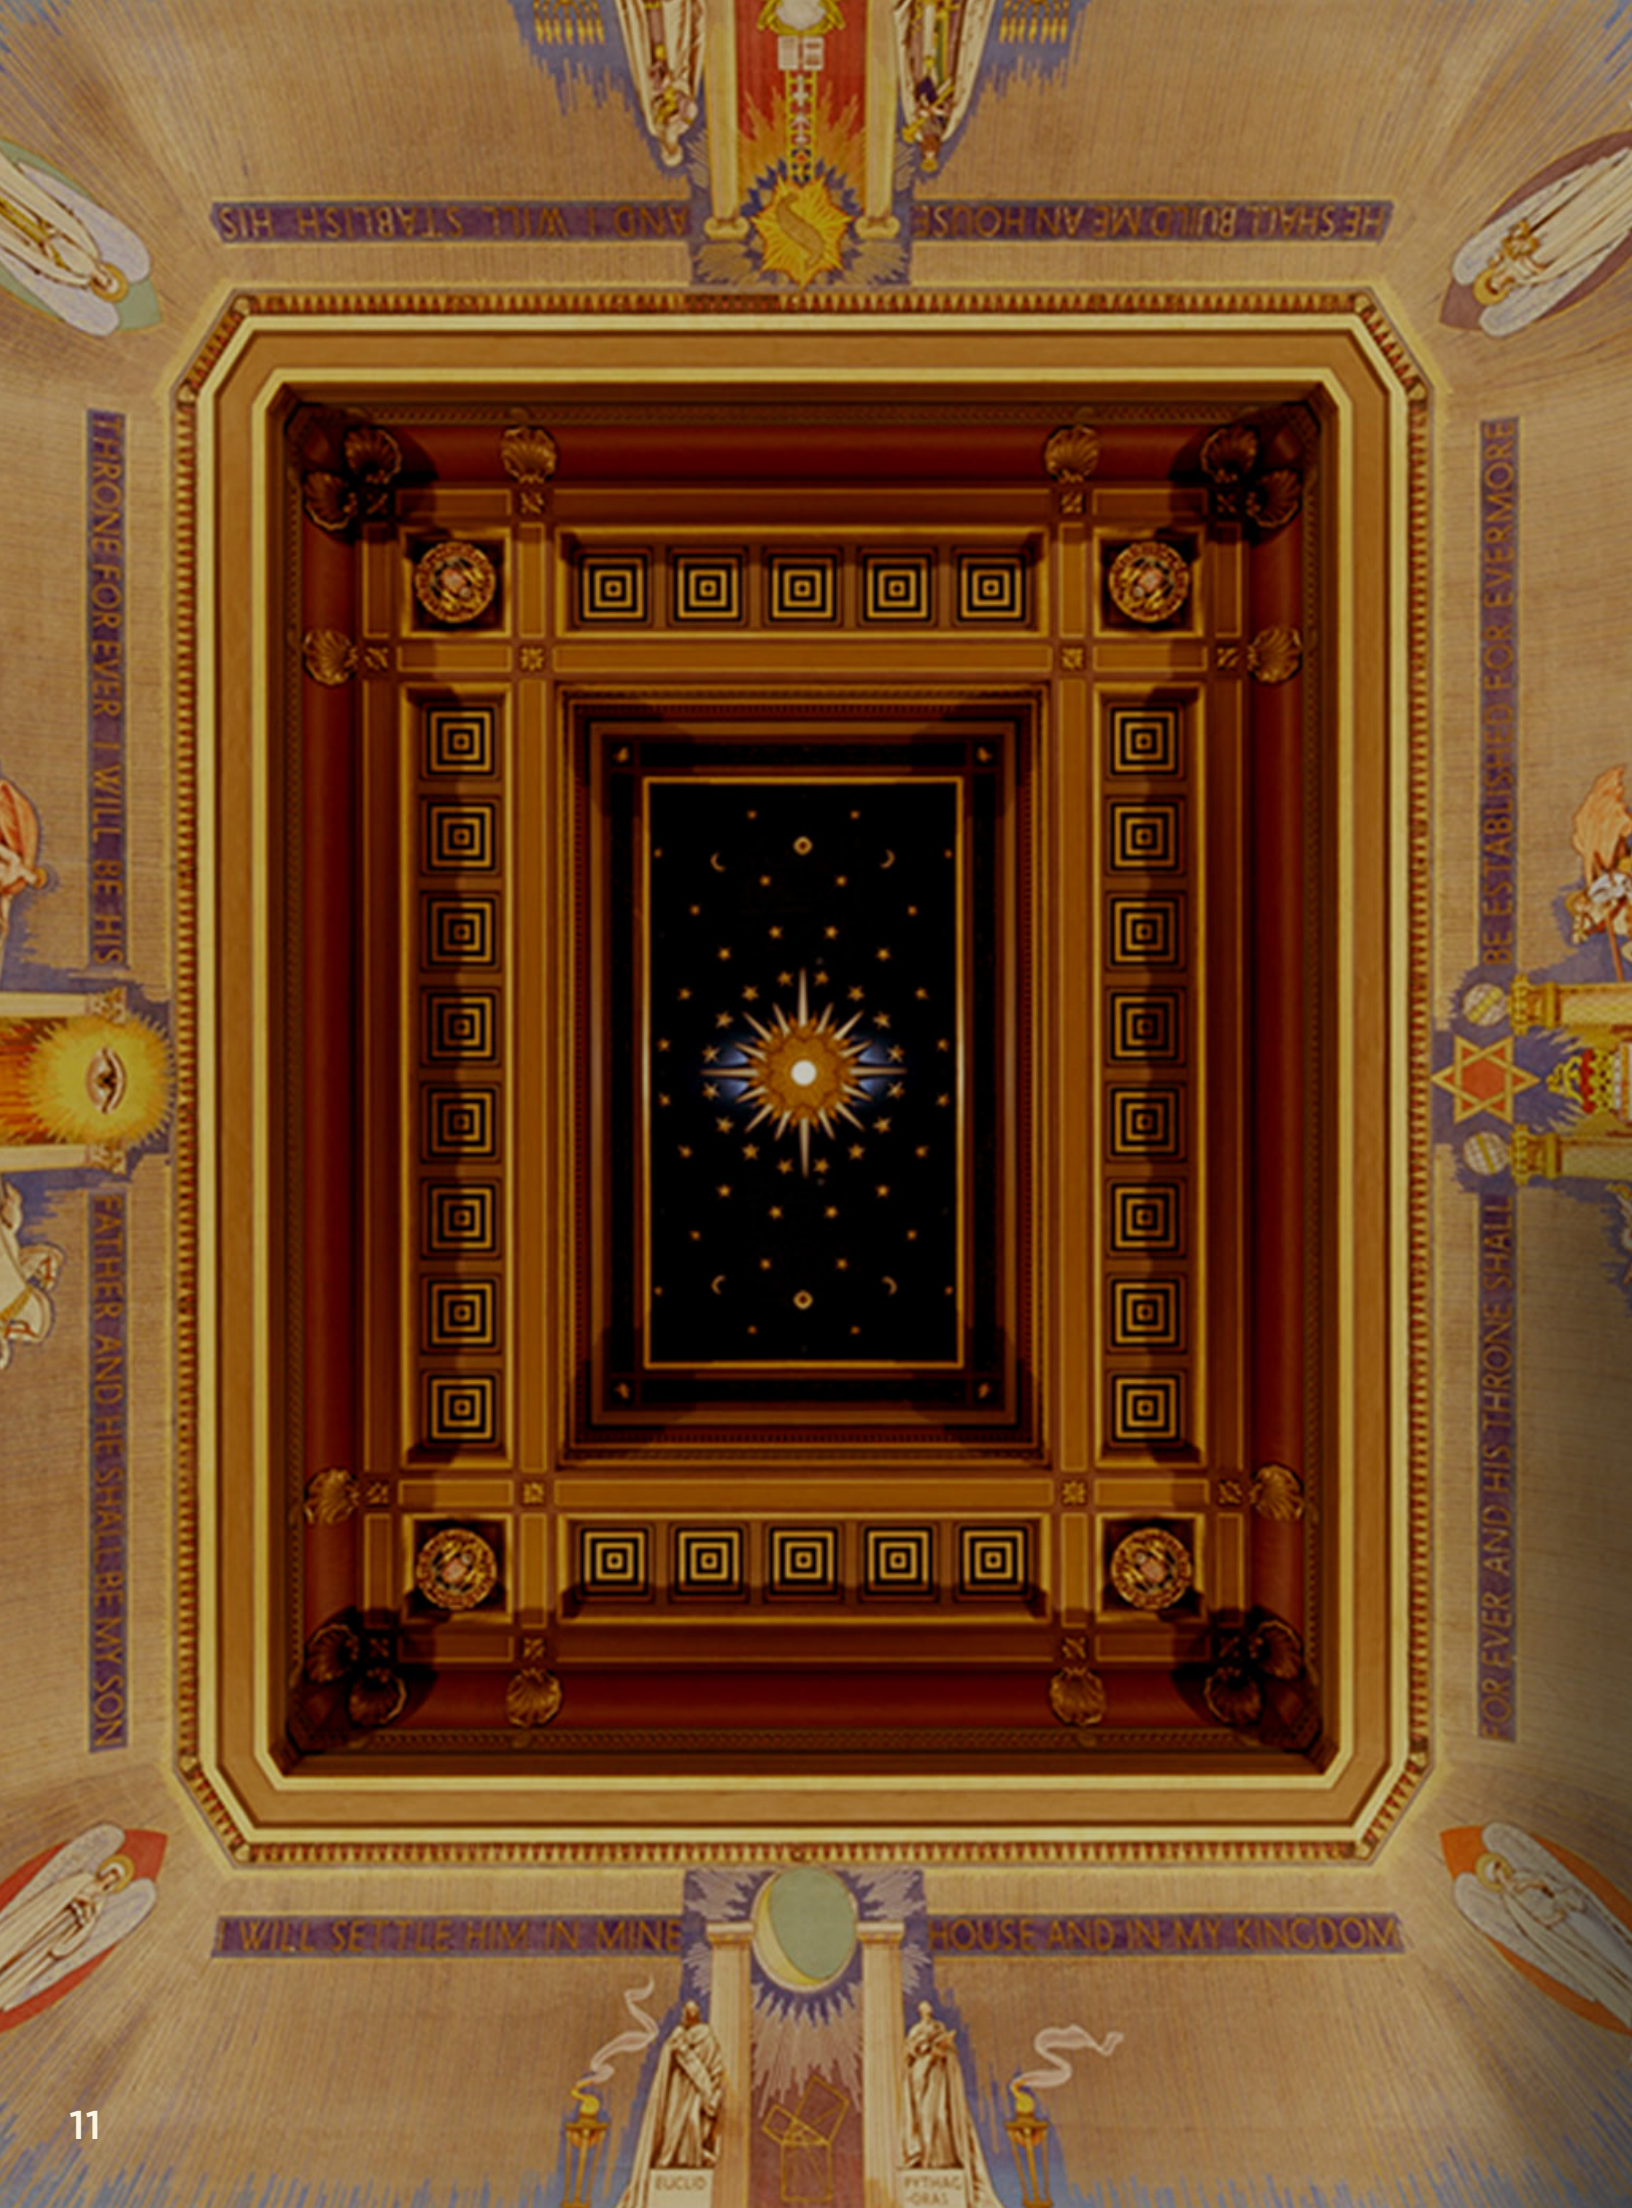

Exuding sophistication and charm, the Vestibules effortlessly transform into three distinct spaces with the sweep of ornate dividing doors.

Rich red drapes adorn the columns, and the air is perfumed with the heady scent of candied fruits and pomanders. As laughter swirls and glasses clink, guests indulge in frosted Rossinis, lost in the enchantment of the evening.

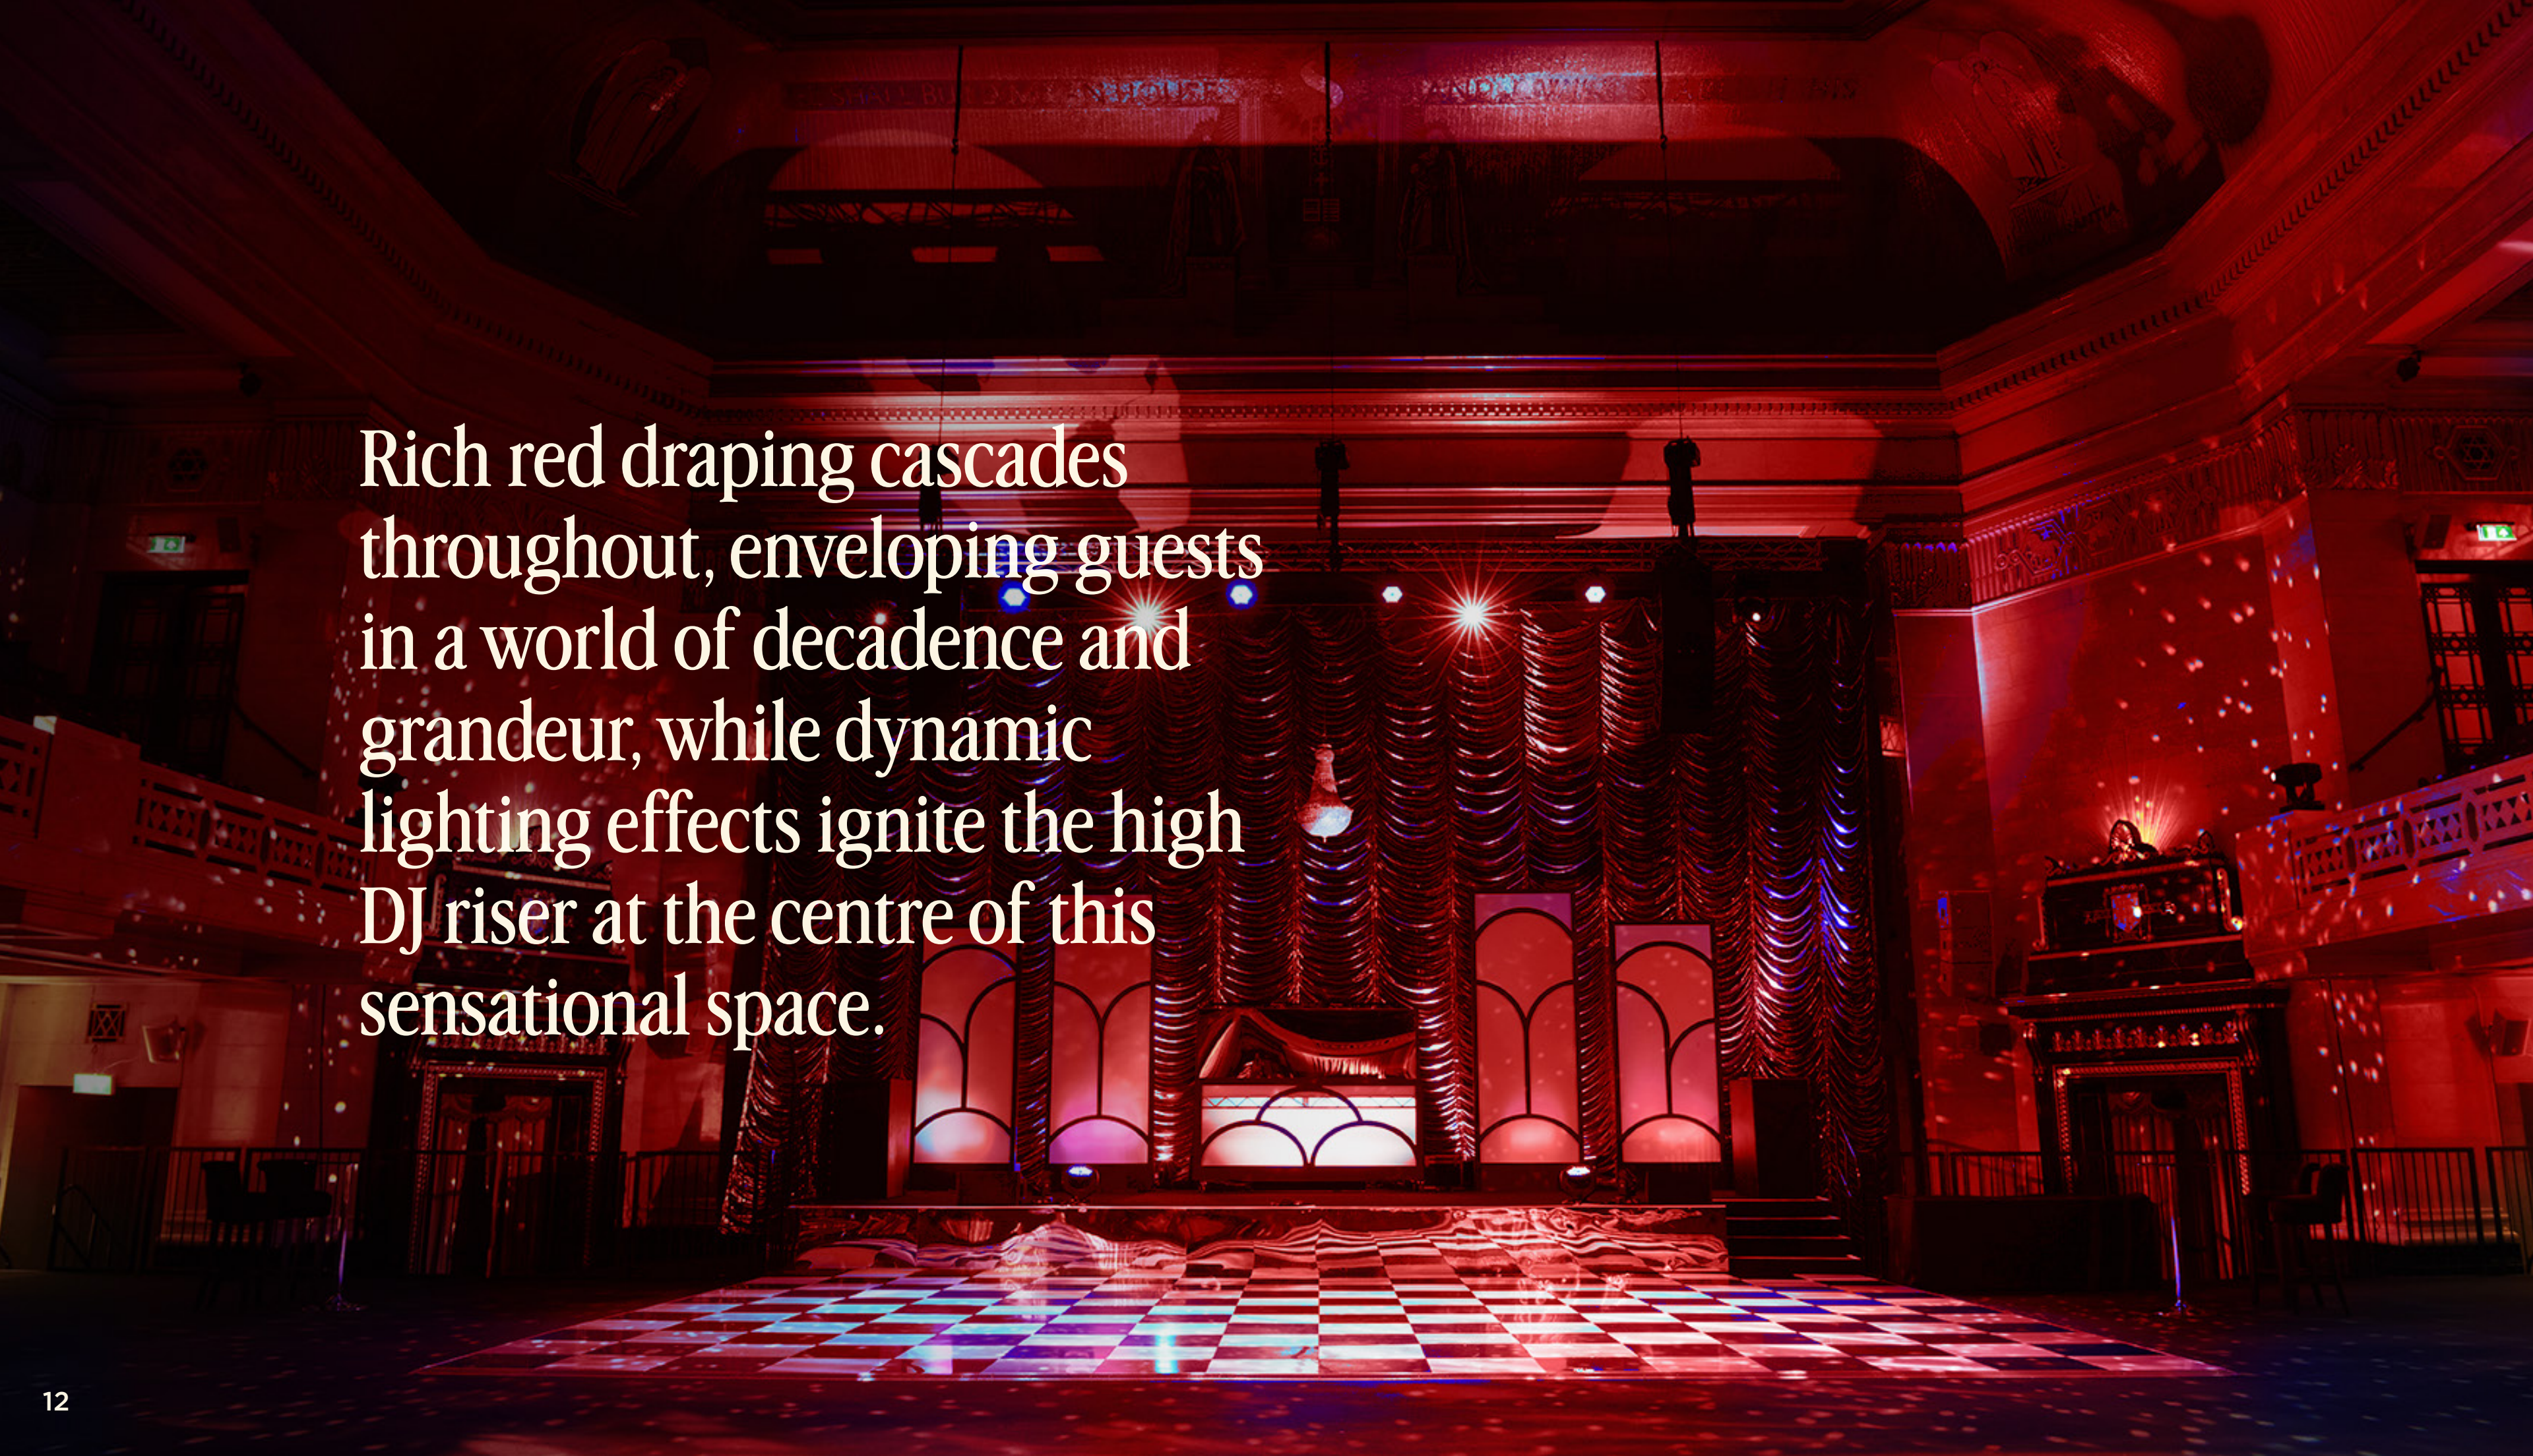

THE GRAND TEMPLE

Leading on from The Vestibules, beneath its meticulously handcrafted mosaic ceiling, the heart of the celebration comes alive-an opulent stage set for an unforgettable night.

Rich red draping cascades throughout, enveloping guests in a world of decadence and grandeur, while dynamic lighting effects ignite the high DJ riser at the centre of this sensational space.
